1. The coat of arms redesignated this date for the 132d Engineer Battalion, California National Guard was approved for the 132d Armored Engineer Battalion, California National Guard by letter GMWH 424.2 & 421.4 - 132d Arm Engr Bn, Cal NG, Office of The Quartermaster General, 20 December 1954.

2. The blazonry and description are as follows:

BLAZONRY

SHIELD: Per saltire gules and argent, on and over a bar azure (light) between a Lorraine cross of the second and a fleur-de-lis buff fimbriated of the fourth, an Indian arrowhead of the last.

CREST: That for the regiments and separate battalions of the California National Guard: On a wreath of the colors (argent and gules) the setting sun behind a grisly bear passant on a grassy field all proper.

MOTTO: Aedificatio ad Pugandum (Build to Fight).

DESCRIPTION

Red and white are the colors for the Corps of Engineers. The Lorraine cross represents battle honors awarded the organization for service as Engineers during World War I and the fleur-de-lis in buff for service as Quartermaster during World War II. The bar in the color of the Korean service ribbon symbolizes service in that area. The arrowhead alludes to an assault landing in Africa.
